

Why Did God Create Cancer?

Why do good men and women and innocent children get cancer and sometimes die? It makes no sense---unless cancer and tumors actually serve a purpose.

I believe cancer cells buy us time to cleanup the toxins in the body and make lifestyle changes. Tumors come and go, and in most cases, tumors have a limited life span. In fact, tumors come and go throughout our lives. The role of tumors is to store or sequester the toxins to a small circumscribed area to keep the poisons confined and prevent them from spreading.

You have probably heard we all have cancer cells in our body. If chemo kills cancer, why don't we all do chemotherapy? But then we would not have those protective cancer cells to encapsulate the toxins and buy us time to cleanup the body. Did you know the body makes approximately 1,000 cancer cells a day. They are on standby if we need them.

For those who do not know my story, I had a rapidly growing tumor in my liver and breast cancer. When Mayo Clinic told me I only had a few weeks to live and I needed to go home and get my affairs in order, I was in shock. I felt hopeless and alone. Dying was not an option for me. I chose to go to a cancer clinic in Tijuana, Mexico. That was 23 years ago and I can now say: "Cancer Does Not Scare Me Anymore."

I do not believe we die from cancer. I believe we die from malnutrition. I believe cancer is the body's last ditch effort to save itself. Our ability to make tumors comes factory-installed, as I like to put it. It is only when we foolish humans repeatedly poison ourselves (often unknowingly) and do things that interfere with our body's natural ability to detoxify, that this protective mechanism breaks down. Tumors are defense techniques designed to keep us alive. Tumors are the result rather than the cause of the problem.

The symptom is NEVER the cause. Doctors treat the symptom. For complete healing, we must address the cause. What a person diagnosed with cancer needs most is a health-promoting lifestyle that reduces toxicity, provides nourishment and opens blocked energy pathways to minimize stress.

In our health clinic, we work with the clients nutrition to see what works for them. We also do light touch therapy to open blocked energy pathways. We teach people to feed the body, not the cancer. Sugar makes cancer grow. The most important thing to remember is that cancer is a dis-ease of toxicity and the body was designed to heal itself.

If you have a friend or loved one fighting cancer and they are not getting the results they need, please have them call our Clinic at 309-762-0577.
